Instructions

Iron 0.5 cm along each long edge of the flounce on the wrong side; stitch the seam close to the edge. Stitch two basting seams along the second long edge using a stitch length of 5 - 7 mm, and leave the threads hanging loose. At one end knot the lower bobbin threads together close to the last stitches, and pull the lower bobbin threads at the other end to reduce the flounce to a width of 92 cm. Knot these threads in the same way and distribute the fullness of the flounce evenly.

Pin the flounce right side to right side to the long edge of the upper front side and stitch a 1 cm wide seam. Iron the seam allowances towards the front side and neaten the edges. On the right side pin the velvet ribbon centrally over the seam, attaching the binding to the fabric and topstitch along the centre. Iron a 1 cm fold towards the wrong side of each 92 cm long edge and stitch the seam close to the edge. Lay the upper front side on the reverse side, right side to right side, making sure that the side flounce edges lie flush on the edges of the reverse side. Lay the lower front side right side to right side, so that the seam edge protrudes over the upper front side. Pin securely all round and stitch a 1 cm wide seam, taking care to catch in the edges of the flounce. Neaten the overlying seam allowances, iron and turn. Ease the edges into shape and iron once more.
